NOTEWORTHY EXPERIENCE FOR THE HOLDING OF HIS POSITION AT THE COMPANY

Hugh Elliott has had a distinguished career both as a senior diplomat and in the private sector.

From 2019 to September 2024, he worked as British Ambassador to Spain, and Non-resident Ambassador to Andorra. An expert in European affairs and the Hispanic world, recent previous positions include director of Communications in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office –“FCO”– and in the Department for Exiting the European Union, as well as director for International Agreements and for Europe.

In the private sector, between 2006 and 2013 he worked at the international mining company Anglo American plc, where he was Head of Government Relations globally.

Previously, he developed his career in the FCO in a range of positions, notably as head of the Amsterdam Treaty Unit, in the department for combating Drugs and International Crime, as head of Economic, Political and Public Affairs at the British Embassy in Buenos Aires and as counsellor for Global Affairs, including energy, environment and strategic threats, at the British Embassy in Paris.
